The Policy of the Union Party

It is sometimes claimed that the Union party should be conducted without reference to the former politics of its members To that we have no objection and cordially assent, not because there was anything done by the Republican party as such, which is not entirely consistent with the Union organization, for the last is the natural result—the mere continuation of the former It is in fact the same, with a different name, adopted to save the political pride of those who did not feel disposed, even for the sake of the country, to call themselves Republicans, while they were willing to act like patriots, under the Union flag That preference was yielded to them, and the Union party is composed mainly of Republicans, and a goodly number of Democrats, who profess to regard the safety of the nation as above all old political theories At the same time, it cannot be denied that the Government must be administered according to some system, nor that the system of opposition is that which was generally held by the Democratic party, and supported by Republicans The action of the country made such a course necessary, and the Union party approves it, and the best which under the circumstances could be adopted Nor can it be denied, that considering the vast preponderance of Republicans in the Union ranks, there has been a generous disposition to share honorable positions with their former opponents; we are glad of it, and hope it may so continue, while faithful and competent men are found among the worthy of such distinction. We are sorry, however, to the disposition which is manifested too plainly to demand as a price of adherence to the cause of patriotism the entire control of the Union party, to the exclusion of those who have been the Democratic party and have led the nation to the brink of destruction may maintain their position as patriots It is very well to say, let there be no distinctions in regard to former politics, but when this is only observed on one side, and the other is adroitly and constantly managing to keep up the distinction and to make capital for its own favorites, distrust is awakened, and the harmony which ought to exist is destroyed The Union party has been cheated by this kind of management, and those who were deemed faithful have shown that they have not forgotten the fleshpots of Democracy, from which they had come out; for that reason, and for others, good and sufficient, sincere Union men will insist that there shall be frank and decided devotion to the cause of the country alone—that there shall be no hankering after the schemes and plots which disgraced and degraded Democracy, and no more rooming of the Union organization, for any other purpose than the lofty one of patriotism With this as its object, it will go from conquering on to conquer, and will triumphantly beat down under its feet, the allies of treason, and all these who, as the citizens of a free and disenthralled Republic, are afraid to do right

USELESS DEGRADATION —Those men, who in the beginning of the war, and thence on for a time so long as it was profitable and popular, condemned treason and stood up for the Union, but who, last year when they supposed Democracy was coming up again and Vallandigham was likely to be elected, began to stultify themselves, and to develope their political depravity by opposing the Government, have found by this time that they defiled and dirtied themselves for nothing Having a partial record of honor, they have blotted it with shame they have sacrificed and belied their professions of loyalty, by expressing sympathy for a traitor, who has been consigned to infamy as lasting as the memory of patriotism For such, who have thus wantonly sold themselves for party purposes and expectations, we have neither pity or respect Of all men, they most deserve popular and universal scorn and contempt They have cheated themselves and ought to feel their utter worthlessness

Letter from Umatilla.

UMATILLA CITY, Feb 3, 1864

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

We are beginning to consider the winter over at this place, having had but one week of real cold weather, and not more than four inches of snow. The usual winds of this country have not prevailed as we expected, and the climate has been all that could be desired, with very little rain and no mud We have had uninterrupted communication with Portland during the entire season except a few trips of the boats, and altogether the place has indeed been a bad one in which to spend the winter The location is one that strikes a comparison in the mind with Bulwer's beautiful description of Lake Como The people are enterprising and deserving of credit for their efforts I passed here last spring on my way to Lewiston—then but one house constituted the town, now you see quite a city spread out—over one hundred good substantial buildings, about twenty five stores, two large hotels, two restaurants, two billiard saloons, and five or six other saloons all doing a good business Quite a number of persons are now here looking out a location for the spring trade, and everything indicates a flourishing time this summer

The principal merchants here are Hill & Kane, Guthrie, Lane & Co, Moody & Co, Hass & Wise, Eastabrook & Case, Biddle & Co The Hotels are the "Orleans," by Peaning and the "Idaho," by Evans—their tables and accommodation would compare well with your first class houses in Portland.

The town itself is the natural result of the development of minerals in this upper country, it being the most direct route to Boise. No effort has been used to bring trade to this point, yet it has become the great point for business on the Columbia river in the short space of less than one year The wagon road has been passable all winter, and travel has not been impeded over the mountains for a single day

The great rush to the mines has commenced early, and business is getting lively The Hotels are thronged, and passenger trains are lively hurrying the miners off to their destination UMATILLA

The Difference.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

I am a Republican and proud of it I also act with the Union party, because it adopts the policy and carries on the work of the Republican party To be a good Union man does not require me to give up or forget, or take back anything which I thought or said, while I was acting with the Republicans Can Democrats in the Union ranks say the same? If so, black is white, but if they can not, it seems to me there is a great difference between them and Republicans and they ought not to complain if I still say I am a member of the party, which fought against the Democrats when it was trying to sell the country to Slavery and Secession Sirs No sir I believe the the Republican party is still alive and that it gives the Union party most of its virtues Of course, I welcome all honest Democrats to our ranks but when they give up their party, they must remember that I have not the same cause for doing so I will cheerfully act with them, but I am still

A REPUBLICAN

REBEL WOMAN —B F T, army correspondent of the Chicago Journal, in one of his letters from Tennessee, says

I shall never be done admiring the patriotic faith and undying devotion of the loyal women of the land, but I must tell you the rebel women of the South are worthy in everything but a sacred cause, of their Northern sisters There is nothing they will not surrender with a smile, the gemmed ring, the diamond bracelet, the rich wardrobe They cut up the rich carpets for soldiers' blankets without a sigh, they take the lead linen from their persons for the bandages When four hundred of Longstreet's men came up to Nashville, prisoners of war, about the roughest, dirtiest, wildest fellows the sun ever shone on, and a flight of stairs in the building they occupied fell killing and wounding a large number of them, you should have seen the fair, young traitress es come forth from their old aristocratic mansions, bearing restoratives and delicacies in their hands, mingling in the dingy crowd, wiping away the blood with their white hand kerchiefs, and uttering words of cheer, should have seen them doing this, with hundreds of Union soldiers all around, and smiling back upon the rough blackguards of rebels as they left But in all there was a distant air, a pride in their humanity strange to see Of a truth they carried it off grandly And almost all those girls were in mourning for dead rebels, brothers, lovers, friends, whom these same girls had sneered into treason and driven into rebellion, and the least they could do was to wear black for them and flaunt black from the window blinds Clothed in their souls in sackcloth' I said they were worthy of their sister at the North in jail has a righteous cause but I said wrong There is a bitterness, there are glimpses of the Pythoness, that make you shrink from them But they are fearfully in earnest, they are almost grand in self sacrifice Oh, that they were true and loving daughters of the old flag.

THE BEST PROOF OF WANT OF PATRIOTISM —When the Government or any of its officers say or do anything which seems likely to harm slavery, there is always a howl of rage from Northern traitors, while the half hearted Union men, whose politics lead them to the strongest side, are shaking and shivering in sympathy with their old masters and political companions Such men are all like the rebels in seeming to think more of slavery than they do of the Union, their interest in its welfare and perpetuity is stronger than their patriotism, and is a sure and certain proof that while their bodies are in the North, their hearts and souls are with the South in all its iniquity and treason

AN UNFORTUNATE —We noticed a few days since in the Chicago Tribune, the report of a peculiarly unfortunate applicant for exemption from the draft He claimed exemption on the ground of having minor children dependent upon his labor for support.

"Were you married" blandly inquired the Draft Commissioner, "on the first of July last?"

"No," tremblingly responded the applicant

"Ah," rejoined the Commissioner, "we can do nothing in your case"

The poor fellow had loaded himself with a widow and five children to escape the draft but too late found he had the "encumbrance, and draft both.

HOW GEN GRANT PROTECTS NON COMBATANTS —The Chicago Post rather likes and thinks the country will certainly approve, General Grant's style of removing non combatants. A few days before the battle of Chattanooga, the rebel commander, Bragg, sent to Grant a flag of truce advising him that it would be prudent to remove non combatants who might be still in Chattanooga Grant made no reply, but proceeded to remove the rebel combatants, so that non combatants might remain without imprudence

A CERTAIN CLASS OF LAWYERS' CATCHING —The following case is reported in some of the New York papers of December 11th:

Jasper Hawkyard Aaron M Burr —This was an action on two promissory notes made by S W Pierce and indorsed by him amounting with interest to $3,224 Defense sets up usury

After the testimony was closed, Judge Barnard charged the jury as follows

Gentlemen, this case is brought to you from the defendant Burr, and endorsed by him amounting with interest to $3,224 The defense attempted to be set up here is usury, but in consequence of the want of skill or care or attention of plaintiff's attorney, it was not properly set up and could not be put in evidence and the plaintiff is therefore entitled under the evidence which has been given to the amount of these notes with interest The claim of the plaintiff, so far as appears here, is a just and righteous one and the attempted defense here is one of those defenses that you will find when you come into court as jurors are constantly being attempted to be perpetrated or practiced by men who have gone into the legal profession for the purpose of committing frauds and crimes, wherever they could the most readily escape the state prison Nearly all these and other defences of the city of New York are set up and planned or undertaken by attorneys, for the sake of gaining a living by some means no matter how bad in a professional way they are unworthy to belong to it is a source of great regret to me to be thus compelled in a court of justice in this public manner to characterize before a jury of gentleman the conduct of some attorneys that practice the city and county of New York. A few years gone by to be a lawyer was to be looked upon as a mark of respect and a rank of honor, At the present time it was going to say it is almost a mark of disgrace for this very reason—that all sorts of villainous cases are brought up for the purpose of extorting money; all sorts of villainous defenses are set up for the purpose of defrauding and cheating honest men out of their just rights. The character of these cases the nature of the defenses the language and conduct of the gentlemen who are interested in them, are such, in my judgement as justify me in the remarks I have made. The plaintiff is entitled, in this case to a verdict of $3423 94.

Verdict accordingly rendered for the plaintiff for that amount

THE DEVIL'S COFFEE MILLS IN THE ARMY —B F Taylor, the chatty correspondent of the Chicago Journal with the Army of the Cumberland, writes

Did you ever see one of the Devil's Coffee mills? Well I saw ten of them to day, like the monumental black birds "all in a row" I refer, of course to the Union Repeating Gun," invented by a man who once hailed from Illinois, but now dates from Dixie—an implement that might do tremendous execution in a skirmish were it not so liable to get out of order as a lady's watch Imagine a big rifle mounted upon a high pair of wheels, and swung loosely upon an arc of a circle by a lever under the gunner's left arm, so as to sweep the rascals like a broom Imagine a coffee mill hopper, where the look ought to be, and a crank to match

Then here is a little copper box filling the hopper You fill it with a dozen or twenty cartridges, clap it into the hopper and the thing is ready for business The gunner seats himself comfortably behind the gun, elevates or depresses it with a touch, and takes sight Before his face as he sits, and attached to the gun barrel, is a steel shield about the shape of an overgrown shovel and inclined a little towards the miller, so that a shot aimed affectionately at his head, glances up and flies harmlessly away Through the centre of this shield is a narrow slit—a la Monitor turret—which enables him to take sight

Now, all things ready, the diabolical grist of bullets in the hopper, the gunner—if it is a gunner—with the rudder under his left arm, turns the crank with his right hand, and the play begins I saw one of them work, it was tick, tick, sixty to the minute, as fast as you could think no brisk little French clock ever beat faster When the barrel gets hot there is another in the chest when the grist are all out and the battle over, you pack the whole affair in a sort of traveling trunk slip in a pair of shafts, with a horse between them, in a twinkling, and trundle it off as lightly as the cart of a Bowery butcher boy But such days do not fancy it Even if it were not liable to derangement, it is, so foreign to the old familiar action of battle—that sitting like a blind steer "blinder" and turning a crank—that enthusiasm dies out, there is no full play to the pulses, it does not seem like soldiers' work

COMPLIMENTARY TO BEECHER —The following is an extract of a private letter from New York

Ward Beecher has got home, and is more popular than ever Even those heretofore most strongly prejudiced against him reluctantly admit that he has done the country great service. His address, night before last, at the Academy of Music, realized $4,000 for the Sanitary Commission I know he would make his mark in England, especially if he encountered opposition No man can match him in the management of a turbulent audience—as the Liverpool secesh doubtless found out before they were through with him He is at his best when earnest work is to be done—none of your soft satin velvety conciliating, polished old logics, like Everett, but an intellectual rhinoceros, whose terrible horn had at one make the common cattle stand aside—an iron clad Doctor of Divinity, with a gun at both ends and guns pointing every way, charged with Greek fire!

A BRIEF STATEMENT, FULL OF FRUTH —The time has now come for action Argument supported by facts has resulted in an overwhelming public opinion That slave holding Democracy was a cheat at the bottom, and Aristocracy of the worst kind That the rebellion was founded on the Stephens' Declaration, if a government whose corner stone was slavery and hence the universal extension of this institution The discovery by the better and honest portion of the Northern Democracy, that the real object of a few leading politicians was office at the hands of the Southern Aristocracy That the rebellion is on its last legs That slavery is dead, and can never be revived—the grasper has lost all—the loser is taken Henceforth, the people having established the Union with a Republican Government, with corner stone in LIBERTY we have but to rally to its support with "eternal vigilance," and would perpetuate it real FREEDOM —Ex.

THE LAST DESERTION —Commissary Sergt. Howes, of Fort Steilacoom, who recently deserted at that post, has written back that he had engaged passage to Australia He stole from Government to the amount of $1,000 in commissary stores

The Crusader states that a Cavalry Company has been formed in Springfield and Camp Creek District, with the following as officers Albert S. Powers, Captain A Bonnet, 1st Lieutenant J McLean, 2d Lieutenant

The Sanitary Fleet

The Bulletin's correspondent in the following letter gives several extracts from Hospital Transports' an excellent book made up of letters written by persons describing the scenes in which they were actors, and partially portrays the work performed by the United States Sanitary Commission in the transportation of the thousands of wounded and sick sent from McClellan's army during the horrible Peninsular campaign!

Early in the summer of 1862 a number of the crack corps were from the field, and the hospitals with new fevers and cases of sickness with the prospects in the presence of the sick and wounded which did not appear to have been anticipated in the western hospitals area general seeing this with the approval of the Medical Director-in-chief was due to the Quartermaster General to allow the Sanitary Commission to take charge of the transports and furnish them with nurses and other necessaries for the reception of sick and wounded men—providing surgeons and other necessaries attendance and diet during the transit to the general hospitals at Philadelphia, New York and Washington

The first transport fitted out was the steamship Daniel Webster, which left the wharf at Harrison's Landing on the James river on the evening of the 2d July, and arrived at the wharf at Fortress Monroe on the morning of the 3d July, a distance of about 70 miles. The Webster was a large steamship, and was fitted up with 300 berths, and had on board a full complement of medical officers, nurses, cooks, stewards, and attendants, and a large supply of medicines, stores, and delicacies for the sick. The Webster was followed by the steamers Ocean Queen and Vanderbilt, which proceeded to California, and the North River and Spaulding, S R Spaulding, 1,000 tons; Knickerbocker, 1,100 tons; Liberty, 1,100 tons; New York, 1,100 tons; Vidia, 1,100 tons; Belvidere, 1,100 tons; Wellington, several steamships. In these vessels all of our poor fellows who had been shot, or fell ill and died in the rebel shed, and the wounded who were more shattered and racked by Chickahominy malaria were borne to the pure air and warm berths at Fortress Monroe, Norfolk, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, New Haven and Boston Each vessel was divided into hospital wards, a surgeon and two assistant surgeons were appointed to each ward—one assistant surgeon to be always on duty in the ward, with the title of ward master, to carry out the surgeon's instructions, and two or more nurses were also assigned to each ward Then there was a dispensary with its apothecaries and the hospital pantry, and linen closet in charge of the ladies from whom came diet and all of that thing. The whole was in charge of a Surgeon-in-Chief who assigned the patients as they came aboard and to the different wards and exercised a general supervision Regular watches were observed and performed by the nurses and attendants

By dark the Webster Small came alongside with four first patients who were carefully lifted on board and swung through the hatchways into their berths In half an hour they had all been washed and combed and refreshed by the nurses and shortly after were undressed and put to bed clean and comfortable in an airy draft of fragrant wholesome air having also a full supply of fresh water for bathing and wine and water and brandy to jelly for drinking and a mess to wash them, and wardmasters up and down the wards, and a young doctor in the after cabin ready to do all that could be done for the poor sufferers

And here as an embarkation scene on the Spaulding

We are now on the dead of night in a sharp steamship tide, and soon afterwards find ourselves climbed by the little steamer on either side of our ship and in the process of taking on hundreds of men, many of them crazed with fever, beside. There are the carrying of the stretchers up the side ladders between the two boats the stopping at the head of it, where the names and some address of all who can speak are taken down and their wounds and little treasures numbered and attached, then the placing of stretchers on the platform the cows of anxious faces above and below decks, the lantern held over the hold the word given to lower the slow moving ropes and pulleys the jar that the bottom the tearing down of canvas the cries the lifting out of the sick man, and the lift up him into his clean white bed on which have been laid a shirt and a pair of drawers, in short all we added charge from cold hands to grateful rest, warmth, cheer, positive comfort and satisfaction winding up with this remarkable verdict—If he can speak This is just like home.

Again

I often wish—as I have comfort to some poor fellow and see the sense of rest it gives him and I ask the favorite speech "Oh, that a good is just as if mother was here"—that the man or woman who supplies the means for the comfort were present to see how blessed it is Believe me you may all give and work to the earnest hope that you will not to suffering, but none of you realize what you do perhaps you can't even conceive of it unless you could see your gifts in use I often think of the many soft supplies which by the goodness of others, passed through my hands before I left home. How little I then knew their value How little I then imagined that each article was to be a life-giving comfort to some poor sufferer

It was not often that the Commission was given time or opportunity to prepare vessels for the reception of the sick The Ocean Queen, the largest of the Aspinwall line, was on her arrival at York-town, a mere hulk, without beds, bedding, or food even for her crew, and without a surgeon Mr Olmsted writes in one of his daily letters

The sick were being put on board They were largely by hold fever patients, and having been for twenty four hours without nourishment I not from exposure to the storm can I many of them rocked by the motion of the ambulances over those frightful swamp corduroy roads into delirium. I was sure that many would die if they long failed to receive the most careful medical treatment with stimulants, nourishment and warmth no one of which could at that time be got for them on board a transport. The gallant woman who had hunted out a barrel containing some Indian meal from some dark place where it had been lost sight of, in the depths of the ship, and were already boiling out hot gruel which they had made of it, and the poor pale arms stood shivering wretches were lying, mayhap, on the cold floor praising with sobbing breathing voices "God bless you Miss! God bless you!" as it was given to them from the ship's deck buckets I never saw such misery or such gratitude By the blessing of God Mr Knapp with two nurses on the Lifedad from Chesapeake's Creek There were straw, bed sacks and blankets besides stimulants and medicines on the Elizabeth and the Captain and surgeon rifled all the stimulants to the working party on her filling bags and holding out bales of blankets Knapp went on shore found a rebel cow at pasture, shot her and brought all the beef also another surgeon By ten o clock at night every sick man was in a warm bed and had received medical treatment and beef tea and milk punch had been served to all who required it But for three of them even the women could do nothing but pray and close their eyes Before all were ready to sail 3 New York surgeons 20 nurses, and 10 surgical dressers, (medical students) were put on board To get proper food for all decently cooked and distributed and given one more concern than anything else The ship's stewards and cooks supply potent ecruits short for the early the Captain's cabin, delighted resident man and the ladies—God bless what we should have done without them—have contrived to make some clothing-bags, with which the kitchen is piece is put to awfully Just think of it a regiment He even one hundred miserably sick and lying most forced upon us before we had been an hour aboard and the ship was steaming round the great ship bore to us a small comfort box and when there were but ten pounds of Indian meal and the response to five millions with flour and sugar the with it I hardly know but one idea is distinct—that every man had a good place to sleep in and something hot to eat and that the sickest had every attention that could be given them their own homes I hear was all the time desirable everything to be done and was successful She spoke life safely with 650 patients One man (a patriot I think) who seemed nearly gone when the ship came on board staring wildly and muttering quite indistinctly at first to the nurse in walking him from a stand deep but at a sense You have saved my life for my wife go I women!

The Commission's ladies were genuine mental and moral to every emergency One writes from the Arctic boat anchored off Yorktown

We wanted a stove for our hospital kitchen on board we just took it out from the kitchen of the ship's crew as we went ashore with the rest upon which we will be soldiers will eat all the soldiers will eat all the food Quickly came up the surgeon in charge of the Jersey Bell whose vessel got something else of the officers was given a stove with fixtures for hospital This was so much found so much written with pity given to—and ladies, the vanity of conveyed with can be both true that the river and filled back proof showed the inside a trifle but proceeded on saving our broken tin stove pipe and parts covered I left a pail to those who for the hospital pond which had to stand in them in place of the lost dipper and I know shall we learn that what was the stores with that matter while we said fact five occurred the rebel fired sick their medicine promptly

During a battle week the wounded were rushed to White House in long trains of cars, some in the cars some on the roof No provision was made for their reception or care during the transportation but as fast as they arrived at the depot they were put on board the transports and promptness of its agents Mr Olmsted writes

Just as we left a long train of cars arrived with a number who fell dead as they were carried on board of the boat and as struck out of the cars a number of the wounded were left behind to die on the platform Among the wounded were a number of rebels who were brought on board with the rest and were treated with the same kindness and attention as our own men

I had all my life been a strong Democrat and had always voted with the party, but I am thoroughly disgusted with the course of the Democratic party in Congress and elsewhere, and I am now a Republican in principle and shall vote with the party hereafter

I am a Democrat myself, but I am heartily ashamed of the course of the Democratic party in Congress and elsewhere, and I am now a Republican in principle and shall vote with the party hereafter

NATURAL HISTORY.—Two years ago this present month the readers of the MORNING OREGONIAN were furnished with a list of some twenty animals, and fifty birds, comprising a collection of specimens in natural history, to be seen in the cabinet of Messrs. Bachtel & Cardwell, artists, in this city. Since then their cabinet has steadily increased, and they now have a very excellent collection. These gentlemen are deserving of credit for their efforts to preserve these specimens, as they may be of lasting benefit to the historian in future years, when the species now seen so commonly, become rare and finally extinct, in our district of the country, as we become more populous. The Cougar, the Catamount, and the Wild-cat, are ferocious looking specimens of the carnivorous quadruped, and one would much rather see them in a gallery, stuffed, than meet them under similar circumstances in the forest. The white-headed Eagles, the Grey Eagles, and the Swan, are among the finest specimens of birds. The number of reptiles and geological specimens are numerous. The pet dog, now missed from the side of his master, may be seen here as natural as life, and apparently ready to bound out with a joyous soap, as you approach his case. We cannot enumerate all their collection, but it is extensive and well worth a visit to see; besides, they have numerous fine paintings, photographs and lithographs, rendering their gallery a pleasant place to while away an hour.

TARRED AND FEATHERED.—An event occurred in the vicinity of Sandy on Thursday night that, under ordinary circumstances, would be called outrageous, but in this case was undoubtedly deserved. It appears that a man employed there to teach school, set out to ruin one of his female scholars, and accomplished his purpose. The subject was brought to light, and on the night stated the wretch was treated to a coat of tar and feathers. A few such applications, in such cases, would work a change in the affairs of the social system, we think.

RUN-AWAY HORSES.—A team of horses belonging to Mr. Fisher, got frightened yesterday afternoon, while standing near a barge on foot of Salmon street, where the owner was unloading his wagon with wood, and started down Front street. At the corner of Ash they brought up against a lamp-post, completely demolishing it, as well as the wagon, but passed on some distance farther before they were caught.

CHECKS AT PAR!—Legal tenders have been at par, to the amount of $165, by some person unknown, from the United States Treasurer's office. Suspicion rested on Calvin Cullom, a colored man employed to sweep the office, as being the person who took the money upon the affidavit of H. O. Coulson, was arrested, and a search of his premises revealed some amount of revenue stamps, etc., but no money was detected for, and he was committed.

CIRCUIT COURT.—This Court began its session yesterday, Judge Shattuck presiding. The following persons were drawn and empannelled as grand jurors for the term: John [illegible], Iwyjiah Byers, Edward Casey, [illegible]ough, L. M. Parrish, E. W. Tracy and J. Watts; Mr. Tracy was appointed foreman. The trial jurors were excused from attendance until Wednesday afternoon at 10 o'clock.

CRIMINAL CASES.—Judge Shattuck decided in the matter of the application of [illegible] Davis and L. R. Martin, for a writ of mandamus to require Mr. McCoy, the Collector to receive taxes in currency, and remit the penalty of 5 per cent. assessed for penalty for delinquency. The writ was refused, Judge Shattuck deciding that the City Council had a right to require taxes to be paid in coin, and also to add a penalty for the same if not paid at a day fixed as the law then they were due.

KNOWS MORE THAN HE WOULD STAND.—"Buckskin Joe" is in his glory when he can perform to a crowd on the streets with his cuitar, that is, stand on three legs of a chair, or kneel, at a given word from his master. But he was sold yesterday by asking too much of the intelligent animal, for instead of following him like a dog should, he raised his head, gave a snort, a jump, and was off at a gallop, much to the annoyance of Bill.

FAINTED.—After the decision of the Recorder had been given in the case which has occupied his attention for some few days past the defendant fainted. Physicians present pronounced his pulse regular and not dangerous, however, and he soon revived, and made a speech in his own behalf.

ANOTHER INDIAN ROW.—We have the particulars of another fracas among the siwashes below the city, which resulted in death to one of the fighters on Saturday evening. The principal aggressor made his escape in a canoe, with bullets flying about him, from his pursuers, and has not been retaken.

CATTLE SHIPMENT.—The steamer Julia was chartered yesterday for a trip to the Cascades, with a cargo of cattle. The band consisted of about 150 head—the property of Capt. Ankeny—and were shipped at 3 o'clock. They are destined for Cru Fino and Florence.

NO NEWS.—We received the following dispatch at 8 P. M. last evening:

CORVALLIS, February 8th, 1864.

Daily Oregonian:

The Southern stage arrived at four forty-five, but brought no news or reports.

OPERATOR, Corvallis.

The Senator brought down eighty-seven tons of freight, and fifteen passengers yesterday, from Oregon City.

WILLAMETTE THEATRE.—There was a good attendance at the Theatre last night to witness the play of the "Wife's Secret," with Mrs. Hayne as Lady Evelyn, G. B. Waldron as Sir Walter Amyott, Miss Goodrich as the Page, and S. Dennis as Capt. Broadlay. Mrs. Hayne seemed inspired on this occasion, and it is seldom one witnesses a more acceptable and satisfactory performance. The farce of the "Irish Schoolmaster" concluded the evening's entertainment. To-night will be repeated the admirable play of "Court and Stage," Mrs. Hayne as Nell Gynne, Miss Goodrich as Frances Stuart.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the matter of the State vs. Geo. A. Noble, the Recorder decided that the case should be investigated by the Grand Jury, and bound the defendant over to appear at the present term of the Circuit Court, in the sum of $500.

WE are informed that the Macadamized Road is the finest place for drives now, anywhere in the vicinity of the city. Several parties have been out that way since pleasant weather began.

TREASURE.—Mr. West, Messenger of the Express, had only about $8,000 from above last evening. The upper-river steamer had arrived at Celilo, but there was no express connection above Walla Walla.

RAIN.—At two o'clock this morning the old familiar sound of "rain upon the roof" greeted our ears, and dispelled hopes of a sunny day. But we can't complain if it rains a week, after such a pleasant spell.

THE Wilson G. Hunt took 20 tons of freight, 40 head of horses, and 70 passengers to the Cascades yesterday. Returning, had a very light load.

ADDRESS.—Rev. Thomas H. Pearne will deliver an address in Vancouver to-morrow, after which a collection will be taken up, for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission.

Address in Aid of the Vancouver Sanitary Aid Society.

REV. T. H. PEARNE will deliver an address at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Vancouver, on Wednesday evening, 10th inst., after which a collection will be taken up for the benefit of the Sanitary Aid Society.

Better Late than Never.

Life is a race where some succeed,
While others are beginning.
The pace at times, at others speed,
That gives an early winning.
But if you chance to fall behind,
Never slacken your endeavor,
But keep this wholesome truth in mind,
'Tis better late than never.

If you can keep ahead, 'tis well,
But never trip your neighbor;
'Tis noble when you can excel
By honest, patient labor;
But if you are outstripped at last,
Press on as bold as ever;
Remember, though you're surpassed,
'Tis better late than never.

Now look for no idle boast
Of victory o'er another,
But while you strive your uttermost,
Deal fairly with your brother.
Whate'er your station, do your best,
And hold your purpose ever,
And if you fail to beat the rest,
'Tis better late than never.

Choose well the path in which you run,
Succeed by noble daring.
Then, though the last, when once 'tis won,
Your crown is worth the wearing.
Then never fret if left behind,
Nor slacken your endeavor,
But ever keep this truth in mind—
"'Tis better late than never."

The Betting Dandy.

A young gentleman—with a medium size light brown mustache, and a suit of clothes such as fashionable tailors sometimes furnish to their customers on "accommodating terms," that is, on the insecure credit system—came into a hotel on Race street, one afternoon, and after calling for a glass of Madeira, turned to the company and offered to bet with any man present, that the Susquehannah would not be successfully launched. The "banter" not being taken up, he proposed to wager five dollars that Dr. Webster would not be hung. This seemed to be a stumper, too, for nobody accepted the chance. The exquisite glanced around contemptuously and remarked:

"I want to make a bet of some kind; I don't care a fig what it is. I'll bet any man from a shilling's worth of cigars to five hundred dollars. Now's your time, gentlemen, what do you propose?"

Sipping a glass of beer in one corner of the bar-room sat a plain old gentleman who looked as though he might be a farmer. He set down his glass and addressed the exquisite:

"Well, mister, I am not in the habit of making bets; but seeing you are anxious about it, I don't care if I gratify you. So I'll bet you a levy's worth of sixes that I can pour a quart of molasses into your hat and turn it out a solid lump of molasses candy in two minutes by the watch."

"Done!" said the exquisite, taking off his hat and handing it to the farmer.

It was a splendid article, that shone like satin. The old gentleman took the hat and requested the bar keeper to send for a quart of molasses—"the cheap sort, at six cents a quart; that is the kind I use in this experiment," said he, handing six cents to the keeper.

Molasses was brought, and the old man with a grave and mysterious countenance poured it into the dandy's hat, while the latter took out his watch to note the time.

At two or three shakes with a little dexterity, the experimenter turned the table, and stared into it and the wonderful process of consolidation, "said the dandy.

The farmer moved the hat. "Well, I guess it isn't hardened," said he, in a tone expressive of disappointment. "I missed my figure other time, and I suppose I've lost the bet. Bar keeper, let the gentleman have the cigars—twelve sixes, mind, and put them in the bill."

"The cigars!" roared the exquisite, "I spoilt my hat that cost me five dollars, and you must pay for it."

"It wasn't in the bargain," timidly answered the old gentleman. "But I'll let you have the molasses—which is a little more than I need for."

He drained the tenacious fluid from his hat as he could, into a spittoon box, the dandy rushed from the place—his wrath abated by the sound of laughter which followed his exit.

No complaint at the police office appeared that the experiment was tried without his own consent, no damages could be recovered.

THE SEARCH OUT.—A capital example of a reader, of what is often termed "a smart chap," happened recently in a town back in New England. A well-dressed individual entered the store addressing the teller, who is somewhat young, inquired:

"Is the cashier in?"

"No sir," was the reply.

"Well, I am dealing in pens, supplying the New England banks pretty largely, and I suppose it will be proper for me to deal with the cashier."

"I suppose it will," said the teller.

"Very well, I will wait."

The pen peddler took a chair, and sat composedly for an hour, waiting for the cashier. By that time he began to grow uneasy, but not twisting in his chair for about twenty minutes, and seeing no prospect of a change in his circumstances asked the teller how soon the cashier would be in.

"Well, don't know exactly," said the waggish teller, "but I expect him in about six weeks. He has just gone to Lake Superior, and told me that he thought he would come back in that time."

Peddler thought he should not wait.

"Oh, stay if you wish," said the teller, very blandly; "we have no objection to your sitting here in the day time, and you can probably find some place in town where they will be glad to keep you nights."

The pompous peddler disappeared without another word.

SETTLED ALREADY.—Old John Daudera was a country blacksmith, the husband of a young wife; he had labored long and become wealthy having the custom of all the farmers around. When he was on his death-bed, he called his wife Janet to him: "Janet," said he, "I am not long for this world; I am wearing away fast. Now about the business, Janet; there's Andrew, the foreman—he knows all about the shop and all the customers like him. You will just let a decent time elapse, and make up together." "Ohone," said Janet, bursting into tears, "don't let that trouble you, John; Andrew and I have settled that already."

HINT TO OFFICE SEEKERS.—A candidate for office came upon "a poor white man," who had a vote to give, if he did have to do his own milking. The candidate, Jones, asked him if he should hold the cow, which seemed to be uneasy, and the old man consented very readily; he took her by the horns and held her fast till the operation was done.

"Have you had Robinson (his rival) around here lately?" he asked.

"Oh yes! he's behind the barn, holding the calf."

A Catholic gentleman, who was on the point of being married, obtained from his confessor his certificate of confession. Having read it, he observed that the priest had omitted the usual penance. "Did you not tell me," said the confessor, "that you were going to be married?"

FALLS GREATER THAN THE NIAGARA.—A correspondent of the Walla Walla Statesman, with officers of the Washington Territory Infantry, while exploring the country between Fort Hall and the Dalles of the Columbia, discovered two Falls in Snake river, only a short distance apart, one of which surpasses the Fall of Niagara by thirty-eight feet; the water falling from a height of 198 feet. The writer thus describes it:

The water at the Great Falls descends in one vast broad sheet—perhaps a thousand feet wide—into a large pool that seems from above very calm, but when at the margin of it the waves dash up as furiously as many larger lakes send up their surf to the shore. The cliffs are covered in spots with a fine growth of juniper. This lends much beauty to the scene. The Falls are triangular in shape, with the point of the angle up stream; or nearly like a horse shoe with the toe up the stream. There are three large rocks on the top of the fall, and back from twenty to forty feet from the outer margin. The largest of the three is in the centre, just above the angle. On the north side is one square shaped, with a large grotto in the side facing the south. This grotto would naturally suggest for it the name of Templar rock: for the entrance in every way resembles a wall tent, and is quite as large. The third is a rock perhaps thirty feet square at the base, and forty or fifty feet high. This one is within a hundred feet of the shore, on the south side, and on its crest is the nest of an eagle, which had young eagles in it plainly visible from the cliffs on shore. If that eagle continues to hatch her brood there, and behaves properly as becomes her kind, I doubt not her eyrie will yet be known as Eagle Rock.

ECONOMY IN FUEL.—The Philadelphia Gazette says that a policeman of that city, who has been in the habit of soothing the weary hours of his watch with "hot corn," the other night passed a brick yard, in which an ascending steam attracted his attention, and entering found it came from a pot of boiling corn, belonging to the colored female of whom he usually bought his repast. The cook, seeing her old customer, begged to treat him to a dish of his favorite "fodder." The Gazette thus describes the scene:

He accepted the offer, and took a seat on an inverted clothes basket. The lady raised the lid of the cauldron, and with a big fork produced the succulent. To the disgust and dismay of the officer, he saw that the lady was cooking the corn in a pot filled with dirty clothes, both boiling together.

"Is that the way you cook all your corn?" asked the officer, with an abdominal qualm.

"Certain."

"What, along with dirty clothes?"

"Why, of course. Can't afford to buy coal to bile de close an' de corn separate."

The officer dropped the ear and took a hurried leave.

A LUXURY.—While preaching a funeral discourse recently, the minister, who has lost, by the interposition of Divine Providence, three wives, and now has the fourth, thus eloquently said to the mourners:

"And my dear friends, God sends this trouble upon us for a wise purpose. There is a joy, a luxury in such afflictions, as I can testify from personal experience."

The soul that can gather luxury from such great afflictions must indeed be happy—each succeeding disposition, of course, bringing a sweeter calm to the lacerated heart.

A CURIOUS PROBLEM.—Three brothers were heirs to their father's oxen, seventeen in number. According to the Mahomedan laws of inheritance, the eldest brother was entitled to one-half, the second to one-third, and the youngest to one-ninth the whole number. As the animals could not be divided without destroying them, the subject was referred to the decision of the faithful Ali. The Caliph added an ox to the number and then made the division. This gave each brother more than his share—the eldest nine, the next six, and the youngest two—and yet left the Prince the ox he had added.

STORMY DESCRIPTION.—A married lady, alluding in conversation to the 20th psalm, observed, that while "young men and maidens, old men and children," were expressely mentioned, not a word was said about married women. An old clergyman, whom she was addressing, assured her that they had not been omitted, for she would find them included in one of the preceding verses under the description of vapors and storms.

THE BEGGARS' "STRIKING."—Among the pensioners "at the cortier" there is an elderly lady who has always been contented to receive a five cent bit. She astonished us yesterday, by returning it with some disdain, exclaiming: "Why, yer honor, don't ye know everything is riz." As she was evidently on her strike we yielded.

A Frenchman having lost his wife, was met by an American friend, who in condoling with him, complimented him "upon the refined grief and graceful sensibility displayed by him when the coffin was about to be closed." "Ah, mon ami," replied the delighted Frenchman, zat was nothing,—you should 'ave see me at ze grave!"

At a woman's convention a gentleman remarked that a woman was the most wicked thing in creation. "Sir," was the indignant reply of one of the ladies, "woman was made from man, and if one rib is so wicked, what must the whole body be?"

From Rev. J. Newton, Philadelphia.
Although not allowed to recommend Medicines in general, I feel it my duty to say that the effects I have experienced from your German Bitters, prepared by you, calls for my gratitude. I was induced to take the medicine because I was confined to my bed, and under the impression that I was in the last stage of consumption. Having taken a bottle of your German Bitters, I was greatly benefited, and have since taken seven bottles, which has restored me to my former state of health, which I enjoy at present, for which I feel grateful to my Heavenly Father, and to you for your valuable medicine. I consider it my duty to recommend it to the afflicted, that they may be restored to health, as I have been, and I will cheerfully answer any letters that may be addressed to me, inquiring the effects of the Bitters.
Yours, with respect,
REV. JOSEPH NEWTON,
Pastor of the Second Baptist Church, Philadelphia.
PHILADELPHIA, August 25, 1862.
Messrs. Jones & Evans.—Well, gentlemen, your Hoofland's German Bitters has saved my life. There is no doubt in this. It is vouched for by numbers of my friends, some of whose names are appended, and who are fully cognizant of all the circumstances of my case. I was attacked with inflammation of the lungs, and was seventy-two days in the hospital. This was followed by great debility, heightened by an attack of dysentery. I was then removed from the White House, and sent to the city on board the steamer State of Maine, from which I was landed on the 28th of June. Since that time I have been about as low as one could be and still retain a spark of vitality. For a week or more I was scarcely able to swallow anything, and if I did force a morsel down, it was immediately thrown up again.
I could not even keep a glass of water on my stomach. Life could not last under these circumstances; and accordingly, the physicians who had been working faithfully though unsuccessfully, to rescue me from the grasp of the dread Archer, frankly told me they could do no more for me, and advised me to see a clergyman, and to make the best disposition of my limited funds as best suited me. My acquaintance who visited me at the hospital, Mr. Frederick Swinbourn, of Sixth below Arch Street, advised me, as a forlorn hope; to try your Bitters, and kindly got me a bottle. From the time I commenced taking them the gloomy shadow of death receded, and I am now, thank God for it, getting better. Though I have taken but few bottles, I have gained ten pounds, and I feel sanguine of being permitted to rejoin my wife and daughter, for whom I have heard nothing for eighteen months; and gentlemen, I am a loyal Virginian, from the vicinity of Front Royal. To your invaluable Bitters I owe the continuity of life which has taken the place of vague fears. To your Bitters will I owe the glorious privilege of once more clasping to my bosom those who are dearest to me in this world.
Very truly yours,
ISAAC MADDOX.
We fully concur in the truth of the above statement, and have all despaired of seeing our comrade, Mr. Maddox, restored to life.
